This Privacy Policy was last updated on June 20, 2024.

Please read this Privacy Policy carefully before engaging in business with SOCO INDUSTRIAL CORPORATION. By engaging with the Company, you agree to this Privacy Policy. This Privacy Policy is subject to change at anytime and without notice.

Definitions:

“Company” means SOCO INDUSTRIAL CORPORATION.

“You” and “Your” means you the individual, or the company you are acting on behalf of, voluntarily engaging in business with the Company.

“VIN” means Vehicle Identification Number.

Gathered Information:

The Company may gather Your personal name, company name, email address, mailing address, physical address, phone number, business references, banking details, other payment information, images, VINs, serial numbers, asset numbers, year, make, model, engine, mileage, hours, and license plate numbers during the course of regular business.

Use of Information:

Any information gathered is used for fulfilling purchases to service and or repair Your assets, providing You quotes for services and materials, and generating invoices for the services rendered to You. Images containing non-personally-identifying information may be used on social media platforms; for example, a picture of the Company service truck next to Your excavator.

Disclosure of Information:

The company explicitly does not sell or otherwise distribute or share Your information with any third party for marketing, promotional, or solicitation purposes. There are only two rare circumstances in which the Company would share Your information, otherwise it is kept confidential; (a) information collected may be used and if necessary shared with a third party for debt collection purposes, and (b) the Company will share your information if compelled to do so in deposition and in the presence of an attorney.

Managing Information:

All information collected is encrypted and stored in a secure environment. Access to the secure environment is restricted to Company personnel and requires high-entropy passwords.
